Cromlech and Menhir of Almendres

The cromlech of Almendres is composed by 95 stones set in two circles. Some of the stones are decorated with schematic and geometric carvings. A little further away we can see the Menhir which is about 4 metres high. Recent researches proved that the most part of the stones are in their original place and date the cromlech from the neolithic (4.000 a.C.) and chalcolithic (2.500 a.C.).
