Bathing Season: From 16 March to 15 November;

Characteristics and Services:

Water type: Sulphurous, hydroxylated and hyposaline;

The thermal spa resort of Cabeço de Vide, with its remains of an ancient Roman bathhouse that is said to date from the time of Augustus Caesar (119 BC), best known as Termas da Sulfúrea, is a quiet and pleasant place in which to relax.

Situated in the valley of Ribeira da Vide, about 1 kilometre to the southeast of the town, the spa is considered to be an oasis in the Alentejo plain, bringing together the therapeutic properties of the waters and the relaxing environment of the region.

The building in which it is located has three floors which, in addition to the treatment areas, also include reception areas, indoor pools, cooling zones, a gym, a spa, a bar/café and an interior unroofed patio.

The healing properties of these waters have been used for about 4,000 years, and are recommended for the treatment of osteo-articular conditions (rheumatism), respiratory problems (asthma, bronchitis, sinusitis, rhinitis) and skin diseases, and its unique characteristics make this resort one of the busiest in the country.

Situated roughly 250 metres above sea level, in a beautiful valley of the Serra de Monchique, in the midst of luxuriant vegetation and beautiful sunlight, this spa is an unexpected oasis of peace and tranquillity and a genuine paradise for all those who visit it. The highest point in the mountains is the peak known as Foia, from where there is a magnificent view over a landscape full of contrasts.

A century before the birth of Christ, the waters of Monchique were already much appreciated as a treatment for bodily and spiritual fatigue by the Romans, who gave them the name of "sacred waters", as is proved by the numerous important archaeological finds that have been made in the area round the thermal springs of Monchique.

This is the Algarve with a difference - a peaceful and calm environment that will give you the rest you so cherish.

Nearby, the former Arab capital of Silves deserves a special mention, as does Sagres, a place which evokes memories of the epic period of the Discoveries and their great inspirer, Prince Henry the Navigator (14-15C).

Envendos is an ancient locality in the municipality of Mação, not only with important archaeological vestiges, but also with strong traditions and habits that constitute a cultural heritage of enormous and unique value.

Being controverse the origin of its toponym, we know, however, that the village belonged to the diocese of Idanha-a-Velha (Egitânia, in the roman period), one of the most important cities of the former Lusitania.

Nearby, close to Ladeira village, the excelent mineral waters, of enormous curative value, spring warm in a copious flow in the so called Desfiladeiro de Águas Quentes (Hot Waters Gorge).

Situated in the Beira Alta, in the peaceful rural atmosphere of the Dão valley, roughly 9 kilometres from Viseu, the spa is surrounded by a harmonious landscape of vineyards, pinewoods and apple orchards that fill the air with their scent.

One interesting particularity is the fact that some of its waters spring from cracks in the granite rocks situated on the river bed. The spa of Alcafache is a small paradise protected from the pollution and stress of city life. In an area that spreads over more than 20,000 square metres, mind and body can rest and regain their strength in the peaceful shade of the extensive pinewoods here.

As a complement to its regular activities, the spa of Alcafache, in conjunction with the Dão-Lafões Tourism Region, organises a varied programme of cultural entertainment, which includes folk dancing and singing, concerts of jazz, pop and Brazilian music, and much else besides.

The existence of Roman remains has led to the belief that the Monfortinho springs were used during the Roman colonisation, although it is only from the 17th century onwards that there is reliable evidence of their use. The spa became important in the forties(20th c.) with the building of newfacilities, and today is one of the most prestigious in the country.

Located in Beira Baixa, on a wind-sheltered plateau, Monfortinho Spa benefits from the excellent local microclimate. Closeby is Idanha-a-Velha, an ancient city of Egitânia, that stands as a remarkable witness to the history and culture of the Portuguese people.

The programmes specially directed towards physical and mental relaxation complement each other to guarantee that a visit to Monfortinho Spa is well worthwhile.

Remains of a Roman changing room prove that this Spa was used in the period of the Roman conquest. Its original name - Balneum - gave rise to the place name Banho by which the village was known in the 11th century. It is also thought that D. Afonso Henriques (12th century), the first Portuguese monarch, frequented the baths.

From 1895 until the declaration of the Republic the spa took the name Termas da Rainha D. Amélia, after the Queen. It is situated in the outstandingly beautiful Vouga valley and has the reputation of being one of the best in the country.

The well known Portuguese writer Ramalho Ortigão wrote of it: "In S. Pedro do Sul, nature takes pride in its own exuberance, in a synthesis of colour and fertility, embroidering the meanders of the river and rising through the leaves of the hills that sweep down, gently, to the water..."

Just a few kilometres away is the city of Viseu, with its vast architectural heritage.

The Hotel Vila Baleira is located amidst the calm beauty of the Island of Porto Santo, 4.5 km from the city centre and 6 km from the airport. The hotel is ideal for the total calm of a truly relaxing break from the routines of daily life. Facilities include one of the most modern of all thalassotherapy units specialising in health tourism and capitalising on the unique therapeutic properties of the island's fine sands and the purity of the waters around this mid-Atlantic island.

Given the excellence of its staff and facilities, the hotel provides health services of both a preventative and curative nature to an increasingly cosmopolitan global society where the frenetic pace of daily life demands a more careful attitude to the requirements of one's own body.

Facing the sea and with direct access to the beach, this complex is made up of a 256 room hotel and 56 fully equipped one-bedroom apartments. The range of services is impressive and includes the most innovative techniques in the struggle against the ailments of modern life: stress, tiredness and exhaustion, a sedentary lifestyle, dietary and digestive problems, tobacco smoking, blood-lymphatic problems, osteo and bone problems and post-natal recovery, among others. Other facilities include a Cinema, a Kid's Club and retail stores.

The Aquae Flavie of Roman times, Chaves is located in the heart of the Trás-os-Montes mountain range. It is one of the most important Portuguese spas, as its waters are the hottest in Europe.

The exceptional quality of its springs, which include the Alto Tâmega thermal channel, was the reason why Aquae Flavie was one of the most flourishing Iberian cities of the Roman period.

Chaves medicinal mineral water is bicarbonated, rich in minerals, especially sodium, silica, fluoride and hydrogen. By its temperature, is called hyperthermal and its main action is to stimulate the metabolic and physiological functions because of its mineralization. It has high anti-inflammatory and analgesic action is descontracturant and facilitates joint function.
