Discover the rivers and lakes. Their inhabitants. Their secrets. Their beauty.

The Fluvium in Mora, only the third of its kind in the world, offers you the chance to gain first-hand experience of many of the inhabitants of the rivers and lakes in Portugal and the world. From best-known species to rare specimens. From exuberant performers to species that almost go unnoticed.

In the large tanks of the Fluvium in Mora, the wonderful hidden world of the rivers and lakes is waiting for you! To be contemplated and preserved -- given that this is also one of the challenges posed by the Centre. And lived to the full!

Conservation, education and protection are the watchwords of Lagos Zoo, where there are more than 120 species of animals and 200 plant species originating from all of the five continents, in a space where people can commune with nature.

Visitors can enjoy a 60-metre-long Flight Tunnel, which allows them to observe the marvellous colours of the birds in full flight, an idyllic scene on Monkey Island, and a small farm where children have the chance to come into close contact with domestic animals, including the dwarf zebus.

One of the zoo's great concerns is to emphasise the space's educational aspects, presenting a multifaceted pedagogical structure.

The main objective of the Park is to foster understanding of the regional landscape, including its various components (animal and plant life, climate, rural architecture, uses and customs, hydrographic characteristics, etc.), and the contrast between this agro-forestry landscape and the urban surroundings.

The park also includes a recovery centre for wild animals, that have been wounded or illegally held in captivity, and a nursery that produces thousands of plants each year, from over 300 species, intended for the park itself and the public green spaces of the municipality of Gaia.

In order to discover the many attractions on offer, visitors should begin their trip in the visitor reception centre, where they will have the chance to learn about the vast range of activities dedicated to environmental education and receive information on the trails that will enable them to discover the park, complemented by safaris in the park with a guided or non-guided visit. Visitors can also see the permanent exhibition concerning the Biological Park.
