The recently refurbished manor house, forty-five minutes from Lisbon airport, is situated in one of Portugal's most treasured areas, with magnificent views of the surrounding mountains, the distant coastline, and the exotic Pena Palace. The picturesque old town of Sintra, with its 18th century pastel-hued palatial facades, is only five minutes distant, and within another fifteen minutes you enter the colourful, bustling seaside towns of Estoril and Cascais, with their lovely vistas and beaches.

The Quinta's 5 rooms are individually and tastefully furnished in period antiques. The sitting-room, and the traditional dining-room give Quinta das Sequóias a warmth and home-like atmosphere that is rare among luxury guest houses of its type. A traditional country side house about midway between Sintra and the beaches, Quinta Verde Sintra is well away from the road, with distant green hills all around. This is a family home with a very friendly atmosphere. Nature is bountiful here and honeysuckle, bougainvillea, palms, bay trees, cedar and succulents wrap the house around. Inside, the sitting rooms have comfortable sofas, terracotta floors and typical Portuguese flourishes like a collection of old plates on the walls. The suites have large sitting rooms and well-equipped kitchens. The bedrooms have a mixture of wooden and metal beds, tile floors with small rugs with matching fabrics on drapes and bedspreads; bathrooms are sparkling. Breakfast, a generous spread, is taken at the tables-for-two in the breakfast room, with its large fireplace at one end, or out on the terrace, looking out to the lush Sintra hills; see if you can pick out the Moorish castle, Pena Palace, Monserrate house, the Quinta da Regaleira and Palácio de Seteais.
